Step-by-step instructions:

1. Remove the outer rubber skin by stretching it around the inner hard case.
2. Start with the charging port, separate the inner hard case by splitting it apart to yield two pieces — a front screen protector and a back tray.
3. Line up the iPad's back camera with the corresponding hole on the back tray, and place the iPad in the tray.
4. Remove the protective film from the inside of the screen protector. Pick at one corner, peel off and discard.
5. Place the screen protector over the iPad and the back tray. Line up the front camera and button holes with the iPad.
6. Close the inner hard case by squeezing the corners and sides together. You may find that working on opposite corners followed by opposite sides work better than going around the case in one direction.
7. Place the outer rubber skin over the hard case. The "pins" on the inside of the rubber skin should fit snugly with the corresponding grooves on the inner hard case.
